The effect of interferon (IFN) on the growth of human malignant melanoma cells (JME, MNB-S) was examined. We showed that IFN had potent growth inhibition activity. Growth-inhibition in vitro could be confirmed on nude mice inoculated with human melanoma cells. The sensitivity of human malignant melanoma cells varied with a wide range of various doses of IFN. We could not identify any specific target for the growth inhibition, and in fact IFN was shown to exhibit a broad spectrum of growth inhibition activity on human malignant melanoma.At 22 years old, Nina Taylor has
