SteamWorld Water Rescue combines boardgame simplicity with heavy sprinkles of RPG. Yet another top-down Shoot 'em up/Action game from 1C Entertainment, more often associated with shoot 'em up games than with action games. This game continues the pattern of Shoot 'em ups by 1C Entertainment, combining boardgame simplicity with heavy sprinkles of RPG elements, similar to that found in video games such as Shadowrun. Developer 1C: Ever since the game world wide was turned upside down in the 1990s, the "Shoot'em Up" genre has been experiencing a steady growing fanbase as large numbers of gamers discover the Arcade adaptations of this genre in action-oriented titles such as Golden Axe and Double Dragon. Some gamers may not know 1C's other output besides Shoot 'em ups, however. The company has become known for its games that can be described as Space Marathon 'em up titles, particularly Alundra and Lunar Silver Star, and has even released the Metal Slug series. Although some of the games such as Halo Wars have depicted their own unique takes on the arcade-style game genre, for the most part, 1C is known for its style of shoot 'em ups that depict a very traditional view of the genre, characterized by highly dynamic gameplay, interesting camera angles, and engaging musical scores. You play as in the game as King, and his followers, Arisen, Nef, and Marlee, are on a mission to save the world from evil. Gameplay takes place in a top-down perspective, with the player taking control of either one of the three protagonists and controlling their movement in a series of city-like levels. The gameplay can be split into two halves, the first half focusing on combat against alien hordes, while the second half consists of a series of city-like levels c6a93da74d
